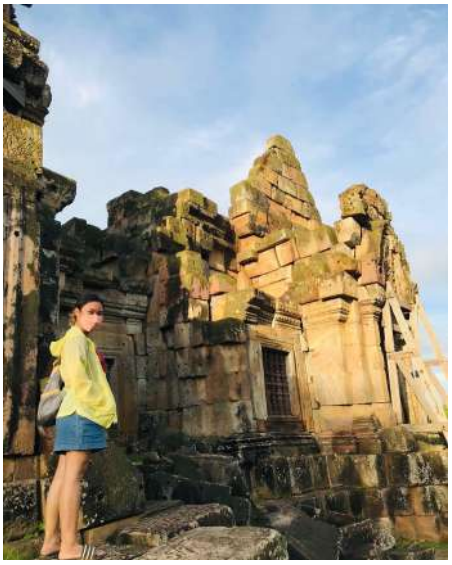
A BIG transition is happening in my life and ministry. Let me explain.



Six years ago, I arrived in Cambodia to serve God in career missions. However, I had to return to the Philippines for additional documents that were needed for my work permit and visa. I arrived in the Philippines just at the time the nation-wide COVID 19 lockdown was ordered. My return to Cambodia was delayed for a year. On May 23, 2021, I arrived back in Cambodia just as COVID-19 was starting to rise there. I had to spend my first few months studying the Khmer language and teaching English to the ARM Cambodia (Rapha International) staff at the same time—most of that was still online. It wasn't until the last quarter of 2021 that I began to make local contacts outside of my home. A lot happened between that original arrival and now—both in the Rapha ministry and my personal life. In 2025 everyone in Cambodia was shaken due to the border conflict with Thailand. Today, it has been "quiet", but the conflict and the fears of that conflict are still very evident. Add to that the current war in the Middle East and its effect on prices in Asia. A crisis atmosphere remains, but we are still here, by God's grace, teaching Cambodians to continue to love their enemies even through the hurt and pain.

As I look back at all the things God allowed to happen in my years here in Cambodia, I cannot help but wonder how it—I—would have been if not for Him. He has shown His lovingkindness, grace, and mercy toward me multiple times that I can only sit back and be amazed at the God He is. In these five years, you all have been a part of this journey and ministry. I cannot be grateful enough for each one of you during this term. You have seen how God worked through your prayers and support in the lives of the Cambodian people we ministered to and worked with. You have witnessed God's miracles in the lives of my own family members. You all have been a part of my faith journey in my five-year term as a BSOP missionary. Thank you for that encouraging partnership!

Now, another chapter of my faith journey is about to begin. After a lot of prayer and seeking God's will over the last couple of years, the Lord has guided me to finish my time here in Cambodia. I will be wrapping up the work God has entrusted to me and resigning from BSOP Cambodia effective the end of June 2026.

This has been, and still is, bittersweet for me. This season has taught me a lot about myself, my relationship with God, and the kind of faith that God requires of me to continue serving Him. I will be honest; the decision to move on from Cambodia was not easy. There have been a lot of instances where I questioned myself, but again, this is part of my faith journey. Though I still do not understand it all, yet God has confirmed again and again that His hand is on this change and that I should not worry. If you know me, you know that I love organizing and planning everything. But this time, the Lord has freed me from having to know that the future is all organized. He has given me great peace that I cannot fathom. I do not know where and what the Lord is leading me to in this next chapter, yet I have no anxiety about not knowing what's going to come. As I prepare myself for this new season, I ask you to pray for me. I also pray that you can continue giving and praying for my support through June in order to cover my expenses here in Cambodia and my travel back to the Philippines. The ticket is over $300 and is not part of my normal budget.

Please continue to join me in praying for the following:
- a smooth transition in the life I am living and a gentle exit from Cambodia;
- seeking God's guidance for the future ministry;
- continued growth of the Day Program (the students, their families, and the staff);
- ARM Cambodia / Rapha leadership and their plans to expand various ministries;
- growth of the BCC Church leadership and ministries here in Battambang;
- spiritual growth of the women from the Ladies' Fellowship;
- leadership of Chomreath, her husband Makara, and Sichean here in Cambodia;
- my nephew Ravi's surgery to untether the cord from his spine; for provision and wisdom for the doctors.

I am honored and grateful to have been part of your life and prayers for the past six years. God has been so gracious to send such wonderful people in my life at such a time as this. Thank you for being part of the life of each Cambodian that I have met and ministered to. I know there has been a great impact in their lives as you have been praying for them and me.

I invite you to continue praying for the other missionaries under BSOP in Thailand and in Cambodia. At such a time in history, the ministry continues as the need arises. Please pray for them and the work they do as you have done for me. BSOP also has new missionaries building a support team. Would you also consider partnering with them? If the Lord leads you to be part of their support team, go to our BSOP webpage at https://globalhz.org/bsop/ and look at any of our great fieldworkers' individual pages.

This is not my last letter—the work continues, and I will share more updates soon. May the Lord bless you and use you to touch many more lives, just as you have blessed mine and those of the Cambodian people.

In His service,
