

Does Culture & Religion contribute to the high rate of teen pregnancies in Kenya?

Did you know that a patriarchal society—one in which men predominate and women are primarily marginalized—can make it difficult for women or young girls to exercise their Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights (SRHR)? IFAGE uncovers how culture and religion are used as enablers to limit youths', adolescents and young mothers' Sexual Reproductive Health and Rights in Rarieda Sub- County in Siaya,Kenya.

Youth Friendly Health Care Providers & faith leaders having a discussion on Sexual Reproductive Health for Adolescents and Youths in Rarieda Sub-county on 9th April 2023

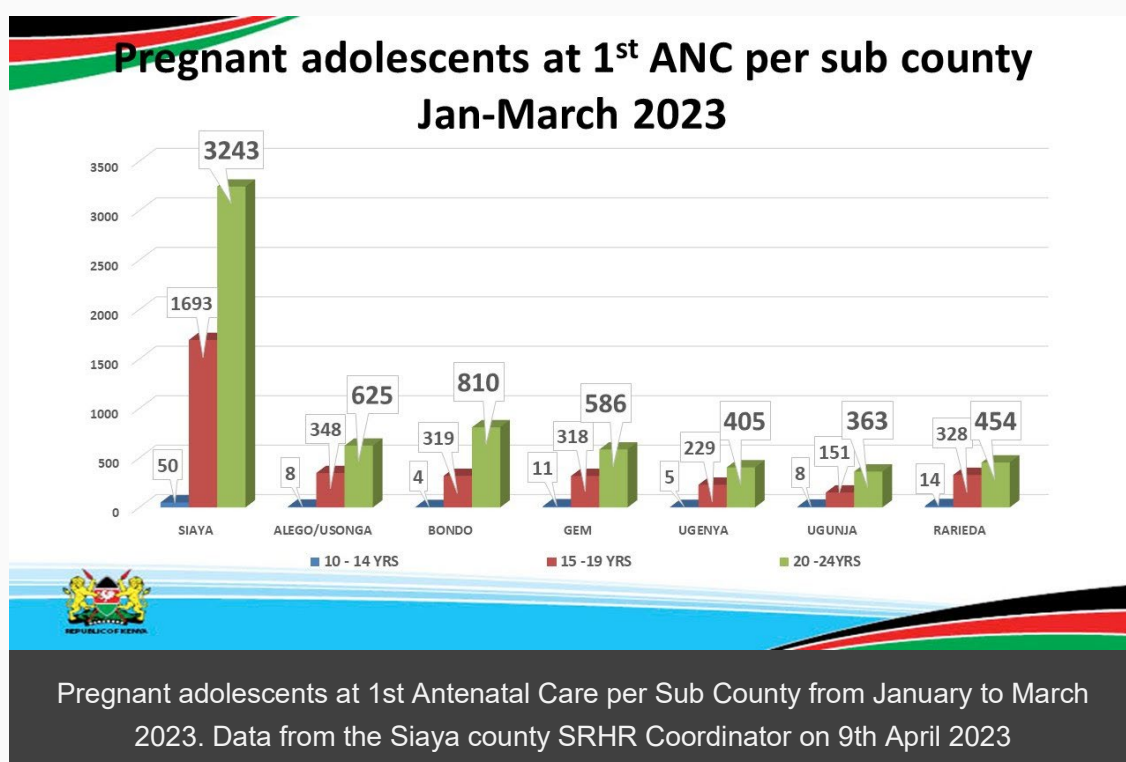

IFAGE held a sensitization training on adolescents and youth-friendly health services at St. Paul's Ranalo Church, from May 9th to 10th, 2023.

Using the Inter-sectional See Judge Act (ISJA) tool we identified some religious and cultural barriers to the provision and access of youth-friendly services in Rarieda Sub-County, these barriers are enablers to teen pregnancies in the area.

The ISJA tool is an action-focused tool used to identify and analyze issues in our communities from a religious perspective.

It allows us to understand youths & adolescents from different angles of intersecting vulnerabilities.

This enhances extensive Sexual Reproductive Education for all.

In Kenya, 1 in 5 young girls between the ages of 15 and 19 are already mothers. In Siaya, this ratio is practically on par with the national data.

This challenge is even more prevalent in Rarieda, a very interior part of Siaya County. There has been an urgency for SRHR knowledge among Youths, Adolescents and youth mothers in this area.

IFAGE prioritizes SRHR empowerment as a strategic action to end GBV and discrimination against women and girls, we are therefore happy to share this milestone.
